

ARMED POSSE IN SEARCH FOR MAN WHO KILLED CRIPPLE

Cordon of More Than 200 Is Scattered Through Allegheny Mountains

KILLED "GAS" DEALER

Search Spurred On When Fugitive Shoots Two Pursuers

BELLEfonte, Pa., Sept. 29.—(INS)— Ringed by a cordon of more than two hundred armed men scattered through the dense forests of the Allegheny Mountains, a fleeing 22-year-old "killer" today was plunging in mad haste
in a desperate bid for freedom.

The boy is George S. Skidmore, of Pittsburgh. He is wanted for the murder of Charles P. Hammond, a crippled gasoline station attendant, who was ruthlessly shot down without cause during a hold-up of his filling station more than a week ago.

Search for Skidmore was pressed in grim earnest today. Saturday when capture seemed almost inevitable, the youth shot down Private J. G. Olmes of the State Highway Patrol, and William Fox, custodian of the Rattlesnake Mountain Air Mail Beacon.

Olmes and Fox, acting on a "tip"
that Skidmore and William Dutton, 24, alleged accomplice in the hold-up,
would be found in a lonely cabin near here had gone to the cabin to arrest
both men.

Skidmore whipped out a gun and shot at the officers. Both fell, seriously wounded. Dutton lost his nerve, police say, and surrendered. Skidmore, apparently wounded by Olmes
who returned the youth's fire, limped away into the woods.

The cordon of pursuing officers and citizens today began widening their search to include the mountain fastnesses near Jersey Shore, about 35 miles from here, where Skidmore was believed to have been seen early yesterday.

In a railroad box car in a siding at Jersey Shore was found a bloodstained rifle believed to have been used by the fleeing youth in his mountainside gun battle with Olmes and Fox. A trainman told police of a haggard, unshaven youth who approached him and asked:

"For God's sake, how can I get a trolley out of this town?"

Around the boy's left knee was wrapped a bloodstained and grimy handkerchief, the trainman said.

Skidmore and Dutton had been hiding in the lonely cabin on the rocky slopes of Rattlesnake Mountain for a week, police believe. Their escape from the Pittsburgh district immediately following the hold-up in which

BRISTOL HIGH LOSES OPENING GRID GAME

Goes Down to Defeat Before Jenkintown by Score of 6 to 2

A HARD GAME TO LOSE

Jenkintown High made an auspicious
football opening by defeating Bristol High, 6 to 2, as the new $50,000 stadium was dedicated Saturday at Jenkintown.

More than 5000 persons watched the game, which included men well known in political and athletic circles. Among those present were former Governor Gifford Pinchot, George H. Benzon, president of the Jenkintown School Board; Ernest Tedler, president of the Jenkintown Parent-Teachers Association,
and Ira Thomas, coach of the Athletics.

For two periods the two teams battered to a standstill. In the third quarter the York road eleven started a march that ended in a winning score. With the ball on his own twenty-yard line, Fox raced around end for 50 yards. On the next play Donahue heaved a pass to Burns and he ran 15 yards for a touchdown.

Bristol was awarded a safety when a bad pass from the Jenkintown center grounded over the end zone.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY COMMITTEE RENEWS FEALTY TO THE PARTY AND PLEDGES TO GIVE SUPPORT TO THE ENTIRE TICKET

A. Harry Clayton Re-Elected County Chairman — Senator Buckman and Congressman Watson Give Accounts of Their Stewardships—Two Hundred Attend the Dinner
—Much Enthusiasm and Interest is Shown.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY COMMITTEE ENDORSES ENTIRE PARTY SLATE

Whereas, it is fitting that the Republican County Committee of Bucks County, in regular meeting assembled, should, upon such an occasion, renew our fealty to our political party, and by public expression, again pledge it our support;

Therefore, Be It Resolved, That we, the members of the Republican County Committee of Bucks County, hereby renew our allegiance to the Platform of our Party as adopted in National Convention in Kansas City, in June, 1928.

Be It Further Resolved, That we pledge ourselves to work for and support at the general Election of 1930, the entire Republican ticket whose candidates were regularly nominated at the Primary Election held in May, 1930.

Be It Further Resolved, That we call upon the Republican voters of Bucks County likewise to support the whole Republican ticket and all the candidates thereon, at the general election on November 4th, 1930.

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 29.—At an enthusiastic and well attended meeting of the Republican County Committee of Bucks County held in the Sixth Regiment Armory, here, Saturday, 100 percent support was pledged to the candidates nominated at the primary election.

Officers were chosen for the ensuing year, resolutions were adopted placing the committee on record as being whole heartedly behind the regularly nominated ticket and speeches were heard which enthused and entertained those assembled.

Officers were elected as follows:
Chairman, A. Harry Clayton, Doylestown; vice-chairman, Mrs. Clarence J.
Buckman, Middletown Township;
secretary, Edward B. Watson, Mechanicsville, assistant secretary, Miss Eleanor D. Worthington, Hartsville.

The elected officers made brief remarks of acceptance and thanked the committeemen and committeewomen for again selecting them to lead the various activities.

A resolution pledging the delegates to support of the entire ticket was presented and without a dissenting vote was adopted.

The local candidates were presented.
After adjourning for luncheon the session reconvened and listened to speeches which were intensely interesting and instructive.

Senator Clarence J. Buckman gave an account of his stewardship as representative from this district. The Senator told of the 20 years of service which he has given. "We have just gone through a strenuous primary election," he said, "and our ticket has been nominated and as for myself I am for that ticket from the top right down to the bottom."

"I am a candidate myself and hope to be elected. If you do elect me it will be my endeavor to serve my own district first and then the State of Pennsylvania. I do not propose to give up any of my prerogatives."

"At the last Primary the Philadelphia gang was stopped from getting control of the State and after Pinchot

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Sept. 29.—(INS)—
—Born with five fingers and a thumb on each hand and six toes on each foot, an infant girl at the Allentown hospital here is normal and healthy in every other respect.

The extra toe on each foot is perfectly formed, doctors found, but the additional fingers are imperfect and will probably have to be amputated.
The infant was born to a 14-year-old

ST. ANN'S ELEVEN OPENS SEASON WITH A VICTORY

One-Sided Game Ends on Sullivan's Field at 19 to 6

EXCELLENT TEAMWORK

(By T. M. Juno)

Beginning where they left off last season, the Bristol St. Ann's eleven opened its 1930 football season with a 19-6 victory over the North Penn A. team on Sullivan's field yesterday.

The game was clearly one-sided from the Bristol point of view. The visitors could not do much with the Bristol line and resorted to forward passing where they were a decided success. The Purple and Gold were weak on this attack and this led to North Penn's only score of the day.

On the other hand, Bristol tried its various line formations and made yardage after yardage on these plays.
The locals' three touchdowns were the result of teamwork, every player doing his share in taking out a man for interference.

Bristol did not have its entire team in the line-up, and several players are laid up with injuries and illness.
However, next week when the team lines up with the Ivy Collegians some new faces will be seen.

The Purple and Gold scored its first touchdown within the first five minutes of playing. Bristol kicked off the North Penn's twenty yard line and after trying out the local line, Alcorn kicked to mid-field. Bristol tried line play after line play until the ball was on the twenty-yard line. A pass, Spa-dacino to Gilardi, netted fifteen yards and then a fumble took place. But Roe was wide-awake and fell on the pigskin. Greco then plugged the line for the first touchdown of the season.

Spadacino scored the second touchdown of the quarter when he raced around right end for forty yards. He was aided by interference on the part of the entire team. In both of these instances the try for the extra point failed.

North Penn's touchdown came in the third period. T. Alcorn tried a pass to J. Alcorn which netted twenty yards. They then reversed it, J. Alcorn threw a pass to T. Alcorn and a touchdown was scored.

Bristol's third touchdown came when Greco intercepted a pass and sprinted seventy-five yards to score. In this instance, Berry almost caught up to the runner and was about to tackle him when Seneca showed his fine art of clipping and took him out of play.

Kornstedt and Ray Daniels played the best in the line for Bristol. These two boys made tackle after tackle and held their positions very well. Al.
Daniels and Spadacino worked well
in the backfield.

Mike Rich made his debut at center and did a very good job. He made a few bad passes but none were harmful.

The Alcorn brothers, John and Tom, were the visitors' best and made quite a hit with the spectators.

Next week Bristol St. Ann's will play the Ivy Collegians, the same team which held Bristol A. A. to a tie yesterday.

By "The Stroller"

The following poetical effusion was inspired by the game of baseball played by the Rotary and Exchange baseball teams, at the annual outing of the clubs, which was held at Maple Beach on Thursday afternoon of last week.

"WHEN TOM COLLIER PLAYS BASEBALL"

"We'll trim the Exchangeites," he said.
"Be Gorra, we'll never yield!"
Are the words Tom Collier said, as The Rotarians took the field.
'Twas on a warm September day,
In the balmy, early fall,
When the rival clubs went forth to see
Tom Collier play baseball.

He placed "Doc" Wagner in the box.
By gad, it was a shame,
To make an old man work so hard
To win a baseball game.
And Richard French, the poor old soul,
He couldn't hit the ball!—
But strange things always happen when Tom Collier plays baseball.

Dave Landreth of the Exchange Club
Met with an accident,
And it would seem his white duck pants
To the tailor's should be sent.
And Percy Ford, he tried to "Dodge,"
But couldn't run at all;
But he'll soon learn, he's got no show,
When Collier plays baseball.

Art Brady rooted for his club,
He's still a gay old bird;
But Snyder made such awful noise,
No umpire's voice was heard.
Jim Brooks, perhaps, one time could play,
In days beyond recall;
He now should sit on the mourners' bench,
When Collier plays baseball.

At one time, at least 'twas said,
Ford played just fifteen men,
Seven on the infield, six on the out,
While Rotary had but ten.
You've got to hand it to Percy,
He's got the courage and gall,
To play his team to win even,
When Collier plays baseball.

When Wenzel batted, Percy said:
"I shust vill kill him dead!"
"Machen Sie nicht so viel Larm,"
Is what the Dutchman said.
But Percy failed to understand
The German words at all,
And kept his tongue a-wagging on,
While Collier played baseball.

Who won the game no one can tell—
Both captains claim the prize;
Or how many runs were scored by each,
No one can even surmise.
I only know that it proved to be
A darn good time for all—
Here's hoping next year again we'll see
Tom Collier play baseball.

SHOW FINE SEAMANSHIP

First County Regatta of Sea-scouts is Conducted in
"Ship-shape"

The first Sea Scout regatta for Bucks County Sea Scouts was conducted, as seamen say, "ship shape"
and Bristol fashion, at the Elks' home on the Delaware, here, Saturday afternoon. The Bristol fashion is a term inherited from Bristol, England, where in the days of wooden ships and iron men the Bristol sailors were considered the real sailors of the day. The regatta was conducted at the Elks waterways by the Bucks County Council, Boy Scouts of America, with the three present units from Morrisville, South Langhorne and Bristol participating.

Upholding the tradition built by the Bristol, England, seamen of yesteryear, the Bristol, Pa., Sea Scout Ship
Elks carried off the honors with 39 points; South Langhorne following with 23, and the Morrisville unit totaling 17.

The events were conducted as follows: Spleing, first, D. Ricardo, South Langhorne; second, F. Herman, Bristol.
Third, C. Hughes, Morrisville. Fifty foot buoy throw: first, F. Herman, Bristol; second, R. Taylor, South
Langhorne; third, H. Smith, Bristol.
Point location on shipboard, first, Elks
S. S. S.; second, Yankee Clipper; swimming, 50-yard dash, first, F. Bell; second, C. Hughes; third, R. Stock-ham. Rescue race, first, F. Herman; second, R. Taylor; third, V. Watt.

Best dive from a boat, first, F. Bell;
second, R. Unruh; third, R. White.
Rowboat tilt, first, Morrisville; second,
S. Langhorne; third, Bristol. Whale-boat race, first, South Langhorne;
second, Morrisville; boat etiquette,
first, Bristol; second, Morrisville;
third, S. Langhorne.

Sea Scout Commodore Thomas B.
Stockham, of Morrisville, was present with his V-bottom mahogany cruiser that he personally built during the winter and together with Ed. D. Cook, Sea Scout Commissioner acted as judges of the events. The whaleboat race was very spectacular and created considerable interest. The three Sea Scout Ships, deserve credit for the spirit of Sea Scouting and seamanship
that they exhibited.

The Bristol crew, not having a boat of their own, made their first attempt at handling the "whaleboat" of the Morrisville group. The local lads are very much enthused, and entertain high hopes of obtaining a boat shortly.

CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN TO ENHANCE PROPERTY VALUES

All Communities Expected to Cooperate in Removing Fire Hazards

Fire Prevention Week will temporarily transform many communities into safer places in which to live and work. Residents in various parts of the state have determined to make changes in their homes and business places which will improve the appearance, enhance the value and increase the safety of their property. How long conditions will remain improved depends, of course, upon the way in which fire hazards are removed and a condition of safety of the property is sustained.

If a building has become run down, if it has lost its original charm or become a fire menace even in the slightest degree, thereby endangering life and threatening a financial loss to the owner, no time should be lost in making improvements.

Before one dreams of a better place in which to live it may be well to consider what can be done with the present home. Merchants in the community furnishing paints, hardware, building materials, modern electrical equipment and other supplies are ready to suggest how the home can be made an object worthy of pride and fire-safety at a very small cost.

The elimination of fire hazards is the first essential to consider in the improvement of property. If a building requires reconstruction, the installation of materials which will resist fire, or at least reduce the danger, is recommended by fire prevention authorities.

Basements and attics burdened with accumulations of discarded rubbish should be among the first places due for a vigorous "cleanup" attack. A thorough cleaning and airing will do much to remove dangers that cause the spread of fire.

The importance of cooperating to banish the fire hazard from the home may be understood when it is realized that somewhere in the United States every two minutes of the day and night, another home burns. This startling fact has been revealed in the statistics of The National Board of Fire Underwriters which reports that more than $130,000,000 in property damage and approximately six thousand lives are lost in home fires each year, of which 30 per cent are children under ten years of age.

A periodic survey of one's home or business property by a recognized insurance agent, will be of assistance in providing adequate insurance in the event that property values have changed. By means of this survey it will be possible to ascertain the proper amount of insurance protection required. Mortgagees, who are on the lookout for the protection of their investments, may be entitled to recall their loans if the property has become hazardous to a certain degree. This, however, may be avoided if the owner is fully aware of the condition of his risk and undertakes to make timely repairs.

In order to avoid the constant depreciation of property, improvements should be made that will add to the present and future value of a home or business place. Improvements on one piece of property encourage similar improvements by other property owners.
Before long an entire community begins to take a pride in its appearance and fire record.

The Fire Prevention Week Clean-up Campaign should result in material benefits to every property owner. It may be the means of making his property more valuable, more attractive and safer, and insofar as people are effected by their environment, it may have a beneficial influence on the family homelife, helping neighboring property also to be improved.

Communities are what people who reside in them make of them.
What they shall become in the future, and how owners may be benefited by efforts put forth to improve and to safeguard property are matters every property owner can best answer for himself.

ST. LAWRENCE CANAL

An interchange of notes between Washington and Ottawa is the first formal effort in two years to reopen negotiations between the United States and Canada on the subject of the proposed St. Lawrence River shipway. Negotiations were broken off in 1928 when former Prime Minister MacKenzie King advised Washington that the dominion would have to adjust certain domestic questions before it could build the shipway.

Those domestic obstacles, one of which was the unsettled question of water power control which is claimed by both the dominion and provincial governments, have not been removed, but President Hoover believes Canada is ready to act.

The present Canadian government, during the campaign in which it overthrew the Liberal government, attacked the King government for its failure to develop the St. Lawrence waterway, and pledged itself to cheapening the distribution of Canadian goods by improving the country's transportation system. Perhaps these are the reasons Washington has decided that now is the time to strike.

Large portions of the United States and Canada have been seeking for years an all-water outlet to the Atlantic. The St. Lawrence route offers the cheapest solution to that need. To virtually all of Canada and to the entire Mississippi Valley the passage of ocean-going ships into the Great Lakes would mean growth, business and prosperity.

OUR BIRTHDAY IN DOUBT

Ancient Spanish archives have convinced a Peruvian historian that Columbus was a Catalanian, not a Genoese, that sailed the seas with Danish corsairs before he entered the service of Ferdinand and Isabella in 1492 and that he visited the shores of America before that "discovery" in the name of Spain in 1492.

These new claims as to the explorer's nationality are matter for little concern in America, but they will draw considerable fire in Genoa where even now a huge celebration in honor of Columbus is in preparation. A more considerate and sentimental history would have kept his findings from the world until after the celebration at least.

Dr. Luis Ulloa is not the only modern student of early discoveries who has believed for some time that the traditional voyage of Columbus was not what the romantic legends would have us believe. To have this sailor burst into the scene with radically new ideas about geography and the shape of the earth added essential parts to the legend, but it will not do any material harm to modify the story at this late day.

Norsemen knew of land in the New World four centuries before Columbus was born, making it very unlikely that the sea-going Spaniards would be in total ignorance of it in 1492. If Columbus was a sea rover who did his bit of privateering with the North Europeans, it is not improbable that he visited Iceland, Greenland and even America before he obtained his fleet from the Spanish court.

Distance lends enchantment which must be paid back in some way.

By Alice Alden

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Four planes—two at Roosevelt Field, one in Canada and one in Germany—are each awaiting the "all clear" signal from one man in New York. Before they can take off on a trans-Atlantic flight, Dr. James H. Kimball, meteorologist of the New York Weather Bureau, is sitting up nights poring over maps and studying charts in order that four planes may complete epochal flights.

Tucked away in his office atop the Whitehall Building, New York's famous weather man is kept busy answering the inquiries of people who want to know just what kind of day it is going to be a week from next Tuesday, or a month from next Sunday. And when Dr. Kimball is not busy forecasting the weather conditions for the people of New York, he is preparing forecasts of ocean weather conditions for aviators planning trans-Atlantic flights. For every aviator who has conquered the fierce elements that rage over the Atlantic has been aided to victory by Dr. Kimball, and none have questioned his predictions or scorned his advice.

Started with Lindbergh
Dr. Kimball started giving scientific data about conditions over the ocean in 1927 when Colonel Lindbergh winged his lone way to Paris. And since that time he has earned the title of patron saint of the aviators by a series of infallible weather predictions, based on a minute study of past and present weather conditions. Almost every day during the summer he is asked to supply information on over-water flying. And in order to give a complete forty-eight-hour weather prophecy, Dr. Kimball last May inaugurated a new service for trans-Atlantic airmen. The service calls for accurate maps, charts and forecasts of wind, fog, storm and general conditions over the ocean, thus enabling aviators to know in advance the complete weather conditions for the flight.

Invaluable to Coste

It was with the help of Doctor Kimball that Coste and his companion were able to make their triumphant Paris to New York flight. Directly the inquiries arrived in New York, they expressed a wish to meet the man whose advice had helped them to reach their destination. Coste was extremely anxious to see just how the expert arrives at his successful forecasts, as well as to thank Dr. Kimball for his marvellously accurate weather map. Coste expressed the opinion that without the aid of the New York weather man, aviators planning a transatlantic flight would be at a loss to know just what conditions would be encountered during their flight.

Although the trans-Atlantic flying season is almost at an end for the year, the four planes arranging to span the Atlantic are all hopeful of success. All four are merely waiting for word from Dr. Kimball. Roger C. Williams, who depended on Dr. Kimball's predictions for his flight to Rome, is one of the aviators awaiting the signal to go from the expert. Another is Captain Roy Annell, who hopes to emulate Colonel Lindbergh's historic flight. Both these aviators are waiting at Roosevelt Field.

In Canada, the veteran Columbia, which carried Clarence Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine to Germany, is all tuned up to make another trip to Europe, piloted by Captain J. Errol Boyd and Lieut. Harry Connor. These aviators, too, await word from Dr. Kimball.

Doctor Kimball is rarely seen in public and shuns publicity. He is happiest when talking with fliers and discussing weather conditions with them. He is glad to be of assistance to trans-Atlantic aviators, for he declares that he has learned about the weather mostly from them.

did not quite understand her. He saw the young man gently touch her arm, as though to bid her be quiet, and himself address Joe. Robert saw that Joe nodded and grinned with pleasure, climbed back into the front seat and composed himself to wait. The man and the woman came toward the door. They rang several times, but there was no response.

He raised himself painfully in his chair, rapped loudly with his cane and called out: "This way!"

They turned and came toward him. There was no doubt the dumpy little woman was a Scot. Robert MacBeth, so long a resident of this country that he had ceased to think of himself as anything but an American, felt a warm feeling of kinship, strong as only English Scots and possibly the equally English Jews can feel at the sight of another of their race in a strange land.

She was typical, this little woman. A good-looking woman at that! But what clothes! He found himself eager to hear her speak. He knew beforehand she would have a glorious burr, and maybe something of a dialect. It was music to his ears. After all these years of Americanization, Robert MacBeth still thrilled to bagpipes, or the burr in a Scot's voice.

But She Had Not Told Him They Were Scots.

He glanced at the man to whom she was talking, and whistled, low. Seldom had he seen such a handsome man. The fellow was striking, both as to his height, the clear-cut beauty of his features and his fine head with its brown hair, gleaming gold in the sunlight. Under his broad brows his brown eyes, large and finely formed, looked out with a curious directness.

Oh, this man will never do! Robert said to himself decidedly. Have all the maids neglecting their work to look at him.

The woman came forward with a quick, decided step. She planted herself solidly on her feet as she walked, as though each small plump foot was a fluteron. Robert had an odd feeling of liking for her. There was nothing servile in the way this woman walked toward and looked at him. She was directly opposite him now.

"Pardon me, but I am unable to rise, owing to a bad attack of rheumatism. Won't you sit?"

She did not move, but kept looking at him oddly and finally said:

"Rob, do you know me? I'm Aggy!"

He stared at her, speechless. His eyes searched her face for traces of the young and blooming sister he had left, so many years ago, in Scotland. It couldn't be Aggy! Yet, when he looked again, this might be Aggy—an Aggy that the years had stoutened and thickened and rounded out a little too much, and put gray in the great mass of red hair which Sister Aggy used to have.

"Aggy!" He said it aloud. "Is it you? I cannot rise."

Aggy, if this was Aggy—this strange woman—came nearer him and took his hand in hers.

"It will be a surprise to you, no doubt, Rob, after so many years, and after my refusing your kind offer so decided-like; but I'm Aggy."

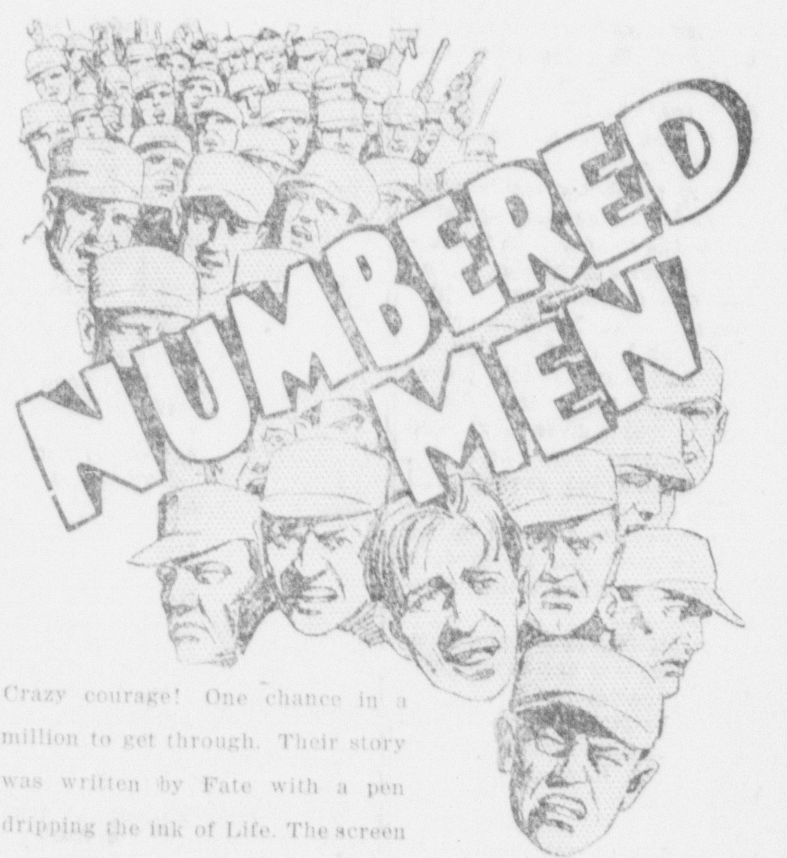

Robert, his eyes still on her said softly: "Aggy!" Then he smiled. "It's like you, coming this way without warning." He laughed. "Why, I thought you were the new cook or the housekeeper."

Aggy smiled. It was a slow and reluctant smile, but it was pleasant. "So did your lady-daughter, who passed us on the road here. She told you driver that you were at home and would see us."

"You didn't tell her—"

CATTLE QUARANTINE NOTICE

Pennsylvania Dep't of Agriculture
Animal Industry Modified Quarantine

For the Control of Bovine Tuberculosis

Effective September 30, 1930, and Until Revoked

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture hereby gives notice that under authority of the Act of Assembly approved April 17, 1929, the said Department has established and will enforce a Modified Quarantine on the following described area, to wit:

The townships of Wrightstown, Solebury, Buckingham, Upper Merion, and Bucks county including all Cities, Boroughs, Towns, Villages, lands and territory lying and located within said Townships.

On and after September 30, 1930, it shall be unlawful for any person, firm, copartnership or corporation to take, or cause to be taken, any cattle into the above described Modified Quarantined Area except in accordance with the following regulations:

(a) Cattle coming from other areas designated as Modified Tuberculosis Free Accredited Areas, or coming from herds designated as Tuberculosis Free Accredited Herds, or from herds wherein the entire herd has passed a negative tuberculin test in the process of accreditation under the Accredited Herd Plan or Modified Area Plan may enter the above described Modified Quarantined Area without being subjected to an additional tuberculin test prior to entry, providing such cattle are apparently healthy and accompanied by a health certificate and tuberculin test chart approved by an official or agent of the Department of Agriculture.

(b) The class of cattle known as dairy cattle and cattle that may be used for breeding not eligible under paragraph (a) may enter the above described Modified Quarantined Area if they are apparently healthy and are accompanied by a health certificate and tuberculin test chart approved by an officer or agent of the Department of Agriculture. The cattle entering the above described Modified Quarantined Area under this paragraph (b) shall be held in quarantine at destination or at such place as may be designated by an officer or agent of the Department of Agriculture and separate from other cattle until after the cattle shall have passed an approved tuberculin retest within a period of sixty (60) to ninety (90) days after entering into the above described Modified Quarantined Area. The maintenance of the cattle during the period of quarantine and the tuberculin retest shall be at the owner's expense.

(c) Apparently healthy bulls, steers, cows, heifers and calves, for stocker or feeder purposes not eligible under clauses (a) or (b) of this section to enter the above described Modified Quarantined Area are not required to be tuberculin tested if kept separate from other cattle. Otherwise said stocker and feeder cattle are required to be accompanied by a health certificate and tuberculin test chart approved by an officer or agent of the Department of Agriculture before they may enter the above described Modified Quarantined Area. All cattle brought into the above described Modified Quarantined Area for stocker or feeder purposes under this clause (c) not having been tuberculin tested may be disposed of by the owner only for immediate slaughter or under the supervision of the Department of Agriculture.

(d) Apparently healthy cattle of strictly slaughter types and to be used only for immediate slaughter may enter the above described Modified Quarantined Area without an examination and tuberculin test. Cattle entering a Modified Area under this clause (d) must be slaughtered within ten (10) days after their entry into the above described Modified Quarantined Area, except when the ten (10) day period is extended by a special permit from an officer or agent of the Department of Agriculture.

(e) Purebred cattle may enter the above described Modified Quarantined Area to be kept therein temporarily for exhibition or to be bred providing the cattle are accompanied by a health certificate and tuberculin test chart approved by an officer or agent of the Department of Agriculture.

Any violations of this quarantine shall subject parties to the penalties provided by the Act.

BRISTOL A. A. HOLDS COLLEGIANS TO A TIE

(By T. M. Juno)

Bristol A. A. inaugurated its football season on the Eddington field yesterday by holding the strong Ivy Collegians to a scoreless tie in a hard-fought game.

Being the first game of the season the teams were rather slow and interest was lacking, although every now and then a thrill would pop up.

The biggest thrill came in the third quarter when Sid Trott of the Bristol eleven got loose on an end run for forty-five yards and was tackled as he reached the last white strip. He fumbled the ball and it rolled beyond the goal post for a touch-back.

"Les" Satterthwaite, Bristol's guard, suffered an injury early in the game and will be out for the entire season.

Next week Bristol will meet another team from Philadelphia on the same field.

World Series Sketches

Taylor Douthit, St. Louis center fielder, is a real "ball hawk"—one of the finest outfielders in the game. He can go as far and fast for a ball as any player in either league.

Douthit played in two previous world series—those of 1926 and 1928—for St. Louis. In the 1926 series he took part in four games and batted .267. In the 1928 series he was played in three games but hit a miserable .091. He is regarded, however, as a dangerous man in a pinch and is a first class lead off man.

He is a right hander, 29 years old, 5 feet 11 3/4 inches tall and weighs 175 pounds.

Jimmy Foxx, first baseman of the Philadelphia A's, is a typical Connie Mack pupil. He has never played under any other major league manager.

When Mack got him in 1925 from the Easton, Pa., team of the Eastern Shore League he was a third baseman, outfielder and catcher. After using him as a catcher in 1925, 1926 and 1927, Mack converted him into a first baseman. He has never failed to hit over .300 for Mack since he was with the team.

Foxx took part in all five of the world series games against the Chicago Cubs last fall and batted .350.

"CARDS" AND ATHLETICS LOOK LIKE "STAND-OFFS"

By Davis J. Walsh

(I. N. S. Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—After due deliberation upon the respective merits of St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Athletics, principals of the 1930 world series, they look the part of a virtual stand-off, as, indeed, all world series teams should be. All too seldom, however, do they reach this parity; so the fact that the Cards and Athletics have no outstanding defensive virtue practically ordains a long, tough series, perhaps reaching the limit of seven games. If anything, the Cardinals are the sounder outfit on defense.

The Athletics may have only the slightest possible advantage in pitching. I would give it to them mostly because Grove is Grove and because Earnshaw is one of the best single-game right handers of the generation. In infield defense, the Athletics quite obviously run second. But they have by far the more compact and the more efficient outfield and, with Wilson presumably out of the series, they are yards ahead in catching with Cochrane. The latter alone is about 30 per cent of his club's defensive strength.

As for Grove, I look for him to win one game and Earnshaw two. This, if it worked out, would put the matter up to Walberg, Quinn, Rommel and Shores to win the additional game necessary to bring the club home to its second straight championship. Shores alone could be figured to win this game if it wasn't for the fact that the man who wins it will have to be a better pitcher than Grimes, Hallahan, Haines, Rheim or Johnson and there isn't a man in the world who can guarantee to be that on any given day. Grimes should be another two-game man. Hallahan has infinite possibilities and not a few probabilities. Haines is always a resolute figure in a tough series. So, considering the fact that Grimes is easily the best money man of the series and has the additional advantage of a spitball, I wouldn't care to announce that this 60 per cent of all defensive baseball goes exclusively to the Athletics. Breaks are to be figured in pitching efficiency just as they must be all through the rest of the game.

Therefore, even conceding a dubious break to the Athletics in pitching, one must grant that the Cardinals are well ahead in the next department of defense. They have the better infield and, as for pitching efficacy, if ever an indifferent pitcher can be made to look good, it can be done by his supporting infield. Bottomley, for example, is twice the first baseman that Foxx can show. Frisch and Gelbert are yards beyond Bishop and Boley. As a matter of fact, Frisch, operating behind a big year, ought to be the infielder of the series, which means that double plays are liable to pull the Cardinal pitchers out of many an emergency. Incidentally, I wouldn't care to say that Dykes is a better man than Adams at third base. Frankly, neither of them is any too good.

Consequently, giving the Athletics the better of the pitching—I do this largely because of Cochrane—one must take some of this away because of infield defense. In fact, if both infields play to form, the Cards would go into their outfield with a distinct lead on the rival outfit.

Reaching the outfield, however, the advantage is practically dissipated, if not wiped out altogether. Douthit may be a better man than Haas but otherwise the rest of the comparisons favor

Philadelphia, with Simmons in front of Hafey, due to the latter's infirmities, and Miller being an all-around better man than either Watkins or Blades.

At least, this is my story. Perhaps you can tell a better one. If the series doesn't, we are liable to see the most dramatic finish this baseball affair has known in four years.

ARNOLD CONSIDERED ONE OF BEST AUTO DRIVERS

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—All speed and no heart, a good-looking bundle of nerve and swerve, with the characteristic grit and dash of the automobile racer, Billy Arnold, the two-mile-a-minute kid from Chicago, is car-racing's super something today.

This young king of four wheels has outspeeded and outrushed everything in his path on the highways this year. In an automobile age when men are sacrificing their very selves for a record here and a record there, this fellow Arnold isn't at all uncomfortable. As a matter of fact, Arnold is downright at ease during the tenseness of automobile grind. His is the desire to lift the throttle a bit more upon each assault on existing marks and eventually create a record that may never be surpassed. And no matter which tend to accentuate the sheer brutality and possible insanity in revolving about a saucer of wood at breathless speed, this chap Arnold will not become any part of discouraged. He's evidently the kind who'd ask William Tell to shoot his haircut off.

Speak of haircuts, Billy probably has been responsible for causing many a race-track enthusiast to go bald in a big fine way. They say his exploits are usually rather hair-raising in effect. Whether or not this is true, however, Arnold has succeeded in lifting a fair share of automobile racing titles this season. He has already attacked the 500-mile Memorial Day Indianapolis race, the Altoona flag-day race and the 200 mile event on the same highway. These alone entitle him to first place among his competitors. What is more, the fellow has established a new world's board track record for two-man cars, too, tearing along at 124.3 miles an hour in this fashion. Recently at a Syracuse fair he split the old mark for one mile on a circular dirt roadway by rounding the circuit in 40.80 seconds. Thus, the chap is gradually attaining what he has set out to attain.

Harry Hartz, auto champion for 1926, and runner-up three times in the 500 mile event, is Arnold's manager and pit pilot. Hartz has become extremely fond of Billy and has even prepared the kid's Miller Special car for the season's races. Hartz, you know, is some sort of an expert mechanic.

The manner in which Arnold received his first opportunity at the motors is generally understood. Hartz had cared to make known an especially high-geared car of his at the Indianapolis highway but no matter whom he questioned to pilot it he would always hear: "If we win, I'll have seventy per cent of the prize." Naturally, Hartz, god-natured as he appears to be, couldn't consent to that. It wasn't exactly catering to usury; it was out-and-out idiosyncrasy. The man, it seems, was still sufficiently conscious to discriminate between what is what and what isn't what.

Despairing of ever hiring a rider of legitimate personality, Hartz happened across Arnold at the track. Billy had been hired to tinker with stray motors and to repair repairable parts and as far as he knew at the time an automobile race-driver was anyone but Billy Arnold, unless there was a race-driver by the same name. At any rate, Hartz, half-unintentionally, asked the youth if he would like to drive a race-car. Billy is supposed to have replied with some wild assertion to the effect that he would give somebody's right hand away for the chance.

The following day Hartz notified Arnold he would be permitted to steer a car. Arnold was so eager for the thrill that he didn't consider his end of the deal at all. He simply asked for the car.

"All I want," the kid declared as he was being told what he was to do, "is a share of speed and the opportunity to show some of the guys around this highway what real speed is. Also, I'll convince them how good I am." To date no one has questioned the ability of this kid who is in his early twenties. The only question that has arisen so far is how long Billy is going to continue the way he has.

Along with such greats as Ralph De Palma, Jimmy Murphy, Peter DePaolo, Earl Cooper, Louis Meyer, Sir Henry Segrave and Ray Keech, the last two having been fatally hurt in attempts at speed records—Segrave at one time last March setting a speed record of 231.362 miles per hour on the sands of Daytona Beach, Florida. Arnold takes his place, glorified and respected, and young king of four wheels for the present.

Work on the Dark Hollow Road, leading into the River Road at the south end of New Hope, has progressed to a point where it is believed it will be completed in about two weeks. The improvement has involved an unusual amount of grading, some of which has been very difficult because of the rock that had to be cut away to widen the road and also to reduce the grades.

The point where the road leads into the River Road was blocked by jutting rocks that have to be blasted away. The first blast was set off at noon Wednesday and brought down an immense quantity of rock that has since been taken out. Further blasting will open up a good approach, so a dangerous spot at the intersection will be eliminated. The improvement of this road will afford a shorter route to Philadelphia. The Highway Department of Pennsylvania is doing this work, the New Hope Borough Council having given them full authority over the portion lying within the limits of New Hope.

Hammond was killed climaxed rapid-fire developments in Pittsburgh when Eugene Batdorf, 23, third member of the bandit trio, broke down and confessed, implicating Skidmore as the "trigger man" in the hold-up.

Meanwhile, Dutton was held in the Centre County Jail here together with Leonard Skidmore, brother of the fleeing youth and a student at Bellefonte Academy. Skidmore's "kid brother," Police charge, furnished the youthful bandit with provisions during his hide out here.

Dutton, emulating Batdorf, is alleged to have "squealed" in regard to the killing of Hammond and also to have placed blame for the murder on Skidmore.
